Senior & Reserves

Kind of a tech question, but feel free to move somewhere else.

When starting a new game, does there have to be a minimum number of players in the senior squad? Reason i ask is when i start with Newcastle, there are a couple of reserve players start in the senior squad with status of squad rotation (nowhere near squad player ability).

So i went on the editor database and changed all reserve players from senior squad to reserves.

Started a new game and there are still players like Abeid in the senior squad with sqaud rotation. Is there a way to change this?

| probably got something to do with "Current Reputation". | | |
| if they got a high rep (or high ca even) they'll most likely always pop up in the first team. | | |

| To be fair, Abied played in pre season and will more than likely get games this season. Probably in the Europa. | | |
| Doesn't answer your question though but as Pat says, probably down to rep. | | |

But they are set as "Squad Rotation" so when you put them in the reserves and put them back to "Hot Prospect" they instantly become unhappy.

| I thought it might be beneficial for the fringe players in the first team as well. Ideally I guess I should be sen forth between the two squads to give everybody some valuable playing time, but when the assistant takes ca forget it. On the other hand, sometimes I call up someone from the reserves and he's "lacking match fitness even though he has played 20+ reserve games. But You can set yr reserve side to use the tactics of the first team and you can always set your side to include the players you wish to get game time without taking control and managing them. Or plain and simple never have more players than you need in yr overall squad

Reserves is where I dump players that are transfer listed. If they are not part of my main squad I'm not interested in them.

They do.... depending.

I'm not 100% sure but either squad status or age means they affect fitness or not, i.e. either youth team squad status (decent, promising) or age, maybe >20 and those players will maintain fitness just playing for reserves (or even NOT playing for reserves)

Edit: someone should do a story of being the reserve team manager 🙂

| Reserve Team Problem | |

Hi

I play in Spain with Ath Madrid. My RES players develop very slow while they are on the Reserve team. I promoted 1 player from the Res team and he is now improving very fast. But considering that Ath Madrid is in a league they get exrerience. Is there a way to keep my young talents in the res team and make them improve fast.

Loan them or give them a few fits team games.

Saying that all my reserves and youths go on loan and are all set to intensive training so are basically always fucked and unplayable.

| If you can use your reserves in the main team a few times they should attract more attention from other teams. | |
| Do you use any patches? Unpatched the players only take a season to massively improve if they get enough game time. | |

Just a possible long shot you could take charge of the reserves and arrange friendlies for the whole of the season so they play regularly or you could use one the tools you can download to stick them in the Segunda B or Tercera divisions

| It's all related to reputations really. If a guy is u21 international it's likely his Current Rep was boosted along w | | • | testing a player with a Current Rep somewhere around 10 times that of a Club Reps is unlikely to move. So if instance a player had a CR of 124, pretty much all clubs with a rep of 11 and lower wouldn't be able to sign him (unless they are wealthy) and he would see himself above a loan deal. So a guy that has been capped is far more likely to never go on loan.

Goalkeepers is the only position I've consistently see get a loan deals.

When playing in the Dutch league, you get plenty loan offers, but only after the first couple of seasons.

So you're suggesting that if a player's reputation is fairly high, it makes clubs in the second division or lower less likely to submit loan offers, rather than more likely? That's troublesome. I had theorised that a player needed to have a higher reputation in order to attract the attention of other clubs.

I just want to be able to send my talented U21 players out on loan so that they can actually get a game instead of playing reserve matches!

Thanks for the info.

Cheers, Toty

First team full of greyed out reserves

So I decided on a change from my Southampton career so I applied, and got, the vacant Wolfsburg job.

Problem is I have loads of greyed out reserves in the squad list so I have to scroll through them all to view the actual players, what is causing this?

The only thing I've done is edited my nationality to German so I stood a chance of getting the job, I've changed nothing else.

I can't see any option like with the PL teams to include/exclude the reserves from the 1st team sqaud.

| The link between A/B sides or 1st/Amat sides is not the same as reserves as you cannot "include reserves" can play in the league. If you are short of a position it will offer you the greys to make up the squad but its thinks you are short of a position | | |

| When I played CM few years ago I could have player in both main and reserve squad at the same time, by reserve team and then promoting him to main squad.For some reason(maybe patch?) that doesn't work an wondering is it still possible? Other question is does moving players from one squad to another influence them or their ability? | | |

| What club are you at? Some clubs don't have reserve teams in the game, mainly those clubs that are in lead they don't have one. Don't think there was a reserve side for Boavista in Portugal and definitely not one for examples). Can't remember if the same occurs in Germany. | | |

i have a bunch of players i'd expect to have good reps.

I always thought if a young loan listed player had a high reputation he'd be less likely to go out on loan because he wouldn't be interested in moving to a smaller team. I could be very wrong though.

Aaah ok. I assumed that higher rated rep would make other teams want them. One player went out on low just before I logged off for the night. His rep is fine - solid DLC - but I have better players.

Have to say the recent update(s) have a lot more good players down the divisions so maybe teams don't need to loan players. Starting as LFC, the game kicked off with around a dozen players out on loan but since then barely anything.

Maybe I should drop the reps of my young players (with an editor) to get them out on loan?

I have around 20 players listed for loan. At least six or seven have PA above 175.

In previous versions of the game, I usually get plenty of players out on loan but in true most recent update, one in three seasons.

| Can't find my reserves team | |

Hi guys!

I'm playing with Villarreal and I just got a news item talking about one of my players being injured, but I can't get to him because he is in the reserves team--and I have no idea how to find my reserves team. It's not in the Team upper left selection button, where I thought it'd be.

Any help?

Have you got Available only ticked prehaps?

Also, Villarreal didn't have a reserve team when the game was made and for some reason the nations that can have B teams have no reserve team if they have no B team, unlike in England, France etc.

| I know there was an issue in Scotland where reserve team games were rarely played after a couple of seasons (and Celtic had enough players for reserve games, so they would not get played). Reserve teams in other countr games. | | |
